House trial team inspects Senate

House members designated as prosecutors in the impeachment trial of Chief Justice Renato Corona made a quick inspection yesterday of the Senate complex where they will hold office for the duration of the trial, which begins on Jan. 16.

Rep. Joseph Emilio Abaya, impeachment manager of the prosecution panel, said that while they were primarily preparing for the legal aspect of the trial, especially the presentation of evidence, they wanted to make sure that other matters were properly addressed, like media access, and providing spaces for the secretariat

Corona to Senate: Summon Speaker

By CHRISTINA MENDEZ

The camp of Chief Justice Renato Corona yesterday filed a motion to subpoena Speaker Feliciano Belmonte Jr. and four other congressmen plus the secretary-general of the House of Representatives to make them appear before the Senate impeachment court on Monday.

Through counsel Jose Roy, Corona's camp filed the petition in an apparent move to bolster their allegation that the House did not meet constitutional requirements on the verification of signatures of congressmen who voted in favor of impeachment.

Apart from Belmonte, the chief magistrate's camp also wanted Iloilo Rep. Niel Tupas Jr., Cavite Rep. Jesus Crispin Remulla, Batangas Rep. Hermilando Mandanas, Navotas Rep. Tobias Tiangco and House secretary-general Marilyn Barua-Yap to appear before the impeachment court.

Tupas is the lead prosecutor, while Remulla, Tiangco and Mandanas were the ones who openly questioned the way some of their colleagues pressured them to sign the complaint.

They complained of lack of consultation and their failure to read the entire text of the 56-page Articles of Impeachment.

Mandanas was removed as chairman of the House ways and means committee while Tiangco resigned from the majority bloc. Remulla also

Serving the Nation, Building the Future

For 24 years now, The Outstanding Filipino (TOFIL) Awards have honored Filipinos over the age of 41 who made significant contributions to uplift both Philippine society and humanity in general.

TOFIL Awardees are role models for the youth and the rest of the nation. Through their noble accomplishments, other Filipinos are inspired to do their part for a better future for us all.

This year's awardees include people who have chosen to serve the Filipino people in various fields: the first female president of the University of the Philippines, the father of economic rehabilitation, a businessman who put the nation's interests first, a doctor who has brought medical services to remote impoverished provinces, and the prime proponent of Philippine cottage industries.

The 2011 Outstanding Filipino Awardees

Dr. Jesus [illegible] Estanislao, Governance

Father of Economic Rehabilitation

With degrees from Cebu's University of San Carlos, Fordham University, and Harvard University, it would have been very easy for Dr. Estanislao to work for a Fortune 500 company abroad. Instead, he chose to dedicate himself to the service of the nation. Serving as Secretary of Finance during the term of the late Pres. Corazon Aquino, he carried out successful fiscal reforms for the rehabilitation of government financial institutions, as well as reforms for the governance of both public and private sectors.

Dr. Ramon [illegible] Nery, Public Service

Serving the Honor of the Poor

Given a choice between a lucrative private practice and the somewhat thankless world of public service, Dr. Ramon Nery chose the latter and never looked back. From serving as laboratory chief at [illegible] Memorial Hospital, he went on to become the chairman of the Central Luzon Regional Blood Council. Dr. Nery's efforts led to the creation of a blood services program that saved thousands of lives. To this day, he continues his work, this time by bringing medical services to the most impoverished areas of Mindanao.

Mr. Jose Trinidad Pardo, Business

Driving the Economic Engine

The first graduate of the De La Salle University – Harvard Advanced MBA Program, Jose Pardo bucked the trend of building his fortune abroad and focused on serving his country while building a sustainable business with a deep sense of social responsibility. Indeed, he pushed for the concept of CSR long before it became a byword in Philippine business. The former Secretary of Trade and Industry pioneered the franchising model that has become the blueprint for the success of many Philippine businesses and continues to drive the nation's economic engine. Today, he is Chairman of the Philippine Stock Exchange.

Ms. Sylvia [illegible] Pendon, Entrepreneurship

Bringing the Best of the Philippines to the World

Concern for the environment, health, and community livelihood, these were the factors that drove multi-awarded educator Sylvia Pendon into becoming a staunch proponent of Philippine cottage industries, as well as organic food and farming. Single-handedly empowering hundreds of women in [illegible] through handicrafts, Ms. Pendon also created a lucrative export market when she introduced proudly Philippine-made products to the rest of the world.

Dr. Emerlinda [illegible] Roman, Education

Educator Par Excellence

An alumna of the University of the Philippines in Los Baños, Dr. Roman worked her way up from research assistant to an illustrious career in education that spanned three decades. In 2005, after three terms as UP Diliman Chancellor, she made history by becoming the premier state university's first female president. Under her leadership, UP established two extension campuses in Luzon and Mindanao to address the lack of health professionals in many parts of the country. She also strengthened the University's science and technology program, producing the best engineers and scientists in the burgeoning environment of the National Science Complex.
